HOPKINS ACADEMY.

This Institution is located in Hadley, Mass., a healthy, quiet and beautiful village of the Connecticut valley.

The design of the Institution is, by thorough and practical instruction and daily inculcation of habits of virtue and sentiments of piety, to fit the pupil for the discharge of his appropriate duties in life.

Order is secured by the cultivation of a conscientious truthfulness and self-respect; and studious habits by appeals to an honorable ambition. Students are required to attend Church on the Sabbath, by a standing rule of the Institution.

In the Classical Department, except in special cases, a course of three years is required preparatory to admission to College.

In the English Course, all those branches are pursued, commonly taught in our best Seminaries.

Hadley is situated between Amherst and Northampton, four miles from the former and three from the latter place.
